DARK CIRCLES

TREATMENT: Sclerotherapy.
DESIGNED FOR: Anyone with dark circles but taut skin—and a willingness to try a controversial new procedure.

HOW IT WORKS: Steven Victor, M.D., a New York City dermatologist, maintains that superficial veins create dark shadows. He injects the veins with a solution (often salt water) that irritates capillary walls. They then collapse and are absorbed by your body.

DOWNTIME: One to two weeks for bruising; you need two to three treatments.

PROS: No more shadows.

CONS: Sclerotherapy was developed to treat spider veins in the legs. Using it near the eyes is experimental and potentially dangerous.

COST: About $375 per treatment. Results can last up to five years.

STAY OFF SURGERY WITH: Hylexin, $95, designed to reduce the blood-vessel leaks believed to lead to circles, or high-tech creams such as Philosophy Dark Shadows, $80, and Clinique All About Eyes, $46. »
